

Who Forgot Their Baby?

A one-minute play

By David L. Kimple

David L. Kimple
www.davidkimple.com

A subway car. An unaccompanied baby sits in s stroller on one end of the car and RHODA steps onto the other end of the train. They are the only people in this car.

RHODA

I see you over there. Don't look at me. I can't help you.

BABY

RHODA

No. Nope. I don't get it - I don't know why you're alone but no- not today. I'm late for work. I'm already late for work, baby.

BABY

RHODA

Why are you by yourself?

The train stops at another station.
No one enters the car.

RHODA

Dammit, baby. Are you good? What do you need?

BABY

RHODA stares down the baby.

RHODA walks up to the stroller, grabs it. The train stops at another station and the doors open. RHODA pushes the stroller on to the platform and gets back in the car.

RHODA

Hey - hey lady. I don't know who's baby this is. You gotta take it I'm late for work.

The doors close and RHODA continues on the train.

END OF PLAY.